FORT BENNING – Col. Michael A. Coss will assume command of the 192nd Infantry Brigade from Col. Charles W. Durr during a change of command ceremony at 9 a.m. May 1 on Pomeroy Field.

Coss was commissioned as an Infantry officer upon graduation from Officer Candidate School here in 1984.

His most recent assignments include the 10th Mountain Division at Fort Drum, N.Y. and a deployment to Bagram, Afghanistan.

He and his wife, Nicki, are the parents of three children.

Durr has been reassigned to Afghanistan, to serve as the executive officer to the commanding general of NATO's International Security Assistance Force. He has been in command since July, 2005.

The 192nd Infantry Brigade, formerly the Basic Combat Training Brigade, conducts 9-week-long basic training cycles. More than 10,000 Soldiers enter the Army and graduate from the 192nd Infantry Brigade annually.
